

Extensive Robbery—Arrest of the Friday morning, Mr. Wolf, of the firm of Wolf & Durringer, corner of Fifth and Market, missed from his cash drawer a hundred dollar bill, which had been placed there but a few minutes before.

The facts of the robbery were made known to the police, and they started to ferret out the case.

For some time past this firm has, at various times, been robbed of valuable articles of jewelry, and on one or two occasions lost money.

The robbery had been carried on for some time, until several thousands of dollars worth of goods had been stolen, yet no clue could be obtained as to who committed the various robberies.

Soon after the robbery, a person picked up a certain one of the stolen goods, and he was arrested.

Friday, John Gallagher, after examining the store of Wolf & Durringer, was satisfied that the money missing, and he started to search the different parties there.

While this was going on, David Taylor, who had been looting around the store for some time, made an excuse to go to the back yard.

When he returned, he was followed by Gallagher, who had been watching him.

Gallagher followed Taylor to the back yard, where Taylor went out the one hundred dollar bill which had been taken from the cash drawer.

It is supposed that Taylor is the person who committed the other robberies.

The accused was before the police court yesterday, when he waived an examination and gave bail in six hundred dollars to answer.

The Cholera.

We are prepared for the advent of this scourge of the human race? The warm season is rapidly approaching, and it is not unlikely that the cholera will be introduced from the East.

The disease, which is so deadly, has appeared in our midst. Preventive sanitary measures should be resorted to at once by the city authorities, and ample means for this purpose should be furnished from the city treasury.

A few thousand dollars, judiciously expended, under the direction of the board of health, may save hundreds of lives during the coming summer.

Let the city be thoroughly cleaned, and all the subterranean drains be kept open beyond their limits.

If the people will not renovate their premises, as directed to do by the board of health, the laws requiring it to be done should be sternly enforced by the police department.

There are one hundred and thirty cases of small-pox in the city—about four miles east of the city—one hundred and eighty soldiers and thirty-five civilians.

Twenty-four new cases were admitted during the past week, and two deaths occurred during the same period.

Federal Court.

Yesterday, closed the present term of this court, the Hon. Bland Ballard on the bench.

The following persons, convicted during the term for passing counterfeit money, were sentenced as follows:

Edw. Riley, one year; George A. Long, one year; and John W. Lewis, one year.

The court will meet on Monday to hear the argument in the case of Captain J. H. Reed and J. W. Lewis, of the 55th Kentucky, who were brought before the court on a writ of habeas corpus.

Police Court.

This was a clear, cold morning, and the judge took his seat on the bench, appearing to be in more than a good humor, probably because he is a Fenian, and was delighted at the sun shining forth so brightly on St. Patrick's day.

Thos. Salsbury, appearing for the property of the Louisville and Nashville railroad company. A number of locks have been broken off the cars, and as this man was in the neighborhood he was arrested.

The judge discharged him.

Leola Harris, charged with Taylor and Mollie Slaughter, three fast women, were before him for being drunk and disorderly. Upon a promise to behave better they were let off.

James Rogers, appearing with D. Birch-bell, bail in $100 to answer.

David Taylor, stealing $100 and a pair of silver-tipped boots, was sent to jail for examination, valued and bail required in $800 to answer.

Nicholas Sutherland, cutting Lawrence Kinschneider, continued till next Friday.

We would remind our readers of the exhibition to be given for the benefit of the high school library. The parents and friends of the pupils should buy the tickets liberally, whether they are able to attend or not. The exhibition will be well worth seeing, but it is essential that the tickets be purchased early.

That which the pupils may derive from a well selected library will be of more value than any other thing that can be given to them.

The regular studies of the pupils should be continued, and the foundation on which to build; but the foundation without the superstructure is a very incomplete affair.

Buy all the tickets offered to you, if you have the money to spare. You can invest your money in no other way so that will produce a great return.

DECEASED ALIVE.—We learn that on Friday of last week a German named Otto Brinkman, who resides in Hamilton township, Jackson county, Ind., was buried alive in a well he was digging on his premises. He had reached a depth of some sixteen or seventeen feet, when the earth caved in on his head, covering him to the depth of eight or nine feet. There was no one about to render immediate assistance, and his body was not taken out until after the terrible accident occurred. Death, no doubt, ensued soon after the saving in the earth, and by the speed of the fall he received his fatal injuries.

Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses.—Yesterday city marshal Paul Dillon arrested Addison W. J. Zoyles, upon a warrant for obtaining money under false pretenses. We learn that he got twenty-five dollars out of a lady by representing himself as the agent for the Ohio and Mississippi railroad.

Good judges think no having extra costs paid to Burnett's.

SAINT PATRICK'S DAY!

HOW IT WAS CELEBRATED.

Grand Fenian Procession.

Banquet at Night.

SPEECHES, TOASTS, &c.

St. Patrick's day, 1866, is one that will form a bright spot in the Irish calendar; a memorial day for all the sons of Erin, and one to which every true Irishman will look with pride and pleasure.

There were incidents connected with the celebration of the 14th anniversary of the patron saint of the Green Isle, which will long be remembered and form a page in the world's history. In every hamlet and town in not only this but other countries where there were Irishmen the day was celebrated, the Fenians in some of the cities turning out with arms.

The movement is a most tremendous one, and those who entered into it have done so with a full determination to risk their all for the liberation of their native country, and they look forward as one of the first nations of the world, and her flag will be honored and respected in every land and over every sea.

Ireland has been down-trodden for years, her people being ground down by taxes, and the object of the Fenian movement is to cast off the British yoke and establish an independent free and independent country.

The day was most appropriately observed here by a grand procession of the sons of old Erin. About 1 o'clock the procession commenced forming at the corner of Fifth and Market streets, and moved on Fifth street. The procession was formed with the United Sons of Erin first, circles from other cities second, and then the Fenians proper.

There were three bands of music in the procession, which was one of the largest that we have ever seen in the city of Louisville, and it was a complete success.

At the head of the procession was the American flag, and interspersed along the same was a banner of the Sons of Erin and several flags of Ireland. P. Bannon acted as chief marshal, with Capt. H. O'Neil and Mattie Carran as his aids.

Jno. B. McGrath acted as marshal of the Sons of Erin, and Wm. Mangin of the military band of Fenians without arms. The assistants marshals were Louis Durringer, T. J. McNally and T. J. McManon.

When the procession arrived at the courthouse they counter-marched and formed in front of the courthouse steps. Hon. P. D. Hagan, Esq., was introduced to these brave men, and received with shouts. After the noise had somewhat subsided Mr. Hagan addressed these present.

He said that this procession was for no idle show or display. It was for a noble and noble cause, and it showed that Irish hearts beat warm for their native land—old Ireland. The return of this anniversary brings pleasant memories of the past. The speech of Mr. Hagan was very timely and well received.

We were unable, on account of the jam, to get a full report of the same. Mr. Hagan closed with the wish that when the next anniversary arrives the Irish people may celebrate the freedom of their now down-trodden country.

J. H. Price was next called for, and he made his appearance on the stand. He said that his feelings and sympathies were with the Fenian movement. Ireland should be free for her many noble sons. She deserves to be free as much as any other country. Mr. Price said it would afford him much pleasure to address the members of the society at some future date.

At 5 o'clock there was a grand banquet at Beck's Hall, on Jefferson street, which was one of the richest affairs that we have ever seen. The different tables groaned with the abundance of the delicious viands, and the guests were in high spirits.

There were present a large number of ladies and gentlemen, who enjoyed themselves, and until late at night everything "went merrily as a marriage bell." A number of four prominent gentlemen were present, who took part in the proceedings of the evening.

A number who were invited to be present were unable to do so. The following letter was read from Judge Pirtle, of the chancery court, and was most warmly received: the applause lasting for several minutes:

DEAR SIR: Your polite invitation to be present at the banquet of the Sons of Erin, which I have the pleasure to accept, has been duly received, and I regret that I am unable to be present. I am, however, very anxious to see you, and I hope to do so at some future date.

Yours very truly, J. H. Pirtle.
